

Gearbulk is an international shipping group providing high quality transportation services for various industrial sectors. Founded in 1968 by Kristian Gerhard Jebsen in Bergen, Norway, the company is 51% owned by the Kristian Jebsen Family, with 49% being owned by Mitsui OSK Lines, based in Japan.

The group and its related companies operate the world's largest fleet of open hatch vessels, specifically designed and equipped to transport unitized cargoes such as forest products and non-ferrous metals. Gearbulk is also involved in the transportation of conventional bulk cargoes and in terminal operations. Gearbulk has around 2000 employees in total.
